For people who suffer from Overactive Bladder (OAB), the symptoms can be distressing.

However, no one medication works the same for everyone and every age group. It is a goal of clinical research to find out who can receive the most relief from a medication.

The PILLAR clinical study is researching a medication approved to treat OAB symptoms. We are looking for men and women 65 years of age or older with OAB to participate. Study-related procedures and medication will be provided at no cost.

If you or someone you know is interested in learning more about this study, feel free to contact us.

General good health is required for participation.
